How does pressure washing work?

Pressure washing works by applying a combination of water and air at a high-pressure onto a surface, producing a cleaning effect.

Normal household water supply is about 4 bar (58 psi) whereas water supplied through a garden hose passing through the booster pump produces pressure of around 140 bar (2030 psi).

Save time, save water.

Bosch high-performance pressure washers are compatible with alternative water sources. Connect the water attachment to the model and blast away. This saves water and ensures environmentally friendly cleaning, as well as offering greater flexibility by expanding the working area.

Onboard storage feature.

Equipped with a space for accessories, Bosch pressure washers ensure your accessory is always near when you need it.
